Prologue

Although no mould exists which is capable of reproducing those intangible elements which the seal of Walter M. Williams High School exemplifies, the pages of this volume of the DOE-WAH-JACK will present to you, in abstract, the story of our seal. Throughout history this term has been used to designate a symbol of authority which affirms the authenticity of a document, a volume, a product, or an institution; therefore, throughout this book we have used our seal as an "outward and visible sign" of the abstract values we have tried to capture—crystalize—convey. This volume, then, like the emblem it symbolizes, tries to show what we were and what we became at Walter M. Williams High School in 1965-1966.

MISS THELMA C. EDWARDS

In Recognition

To stimulate, encourage, and direct learning is the soul and substance of the art of teaching. Bagley-Keith

The good teacher makes the student aware of elusive horizons and bids him ponder—pursue—probe—until he finds his own unplundered planet. An individual with imagination—integrity—intelligence—this teacher loves the lively quest for knowledge in the classrooms, the vibrant noises of the crowded corridors, and the quiet, empty building of late afternoon. One who challenges the student and is challenged by him, this teacher uses warmth and wit and wisdom to urge each student to push back the retreating horizons about him. This year the DOE-WAH-JACK recognizes a teacher who exemplifies these qualities.

Because she has used the searchlight of knowledge to guide us to the scrolls of wisdom in such diverse areas of learning as syntax and sonnets, we have learned. Because she has carried the torch of service through her sponsorship of clubs and honorary organizations, we have served. Because she has given us the tenacity of purpose and the enthusiastic spirit of our own mascot by supporting us in both curricular and extra-curricular activities, we have been loyal. Because she has led us to the stairways of achievement through her own excellence as a scholar, a linguist, and a musician, we have aspired. Through these actions she has created, in abstract, the seal of Walter M. Williams High School, and for those reasons, we, the 1966 DOE-WAH-JACK staff, present our seal for distinguished service to Miss Thelma C. Edwards.

Miss Edwards, efficient in all her duties as a teacher, consults with Mr. Whitehurst on a question of policy.

Always ready to help, Miss Edwards discusses an essay with David Bowes, Kathy Bradley, and Robert Windham.

WHS

The First . . . The Best

DOE-WAH-JACK

Beyond the modern outlook of WHS lies a wealth of tradition, part of which is the name of its yearbook, DOE-WAH-JACK. Taken in 1924 from the packing top of a pot-bellied stove, the name comes from an old Indian word meaning the "first" or the "best."

As well as leading other schools in tradition, Williams is "first" and "best" in education, service, athletics, and enjoyment. Through modern teaching methods, organizations which serve to improve the school and the community, an athletic program dedicated to developing sportsmanship, and many other extra-curricular activities which involve students in working social relationships, WHS fulfills its tradition of being The First . . . The Best.

in Education . . .

Education is the major concern of Williams High School; for the students, each day's instruction opens new doors of opportunity to learn. The process of learning in this modern age is not limited to the classroom; to provide for this need for knowledge, the educational facilities branch out to the library, the laboratories, and to visual aids used in the classroom. Through such learning experiences, students at WHS gain a working knowledge of life that will be invaluable in the uncertain future. Truly the students of WHS will be able to face that future with a courage and confidence that come only from a sound education.

in Service . . .

Students contribute valuable service to the school in many different ways, each according to his ability to serve. Many find the chorus an excellent place to put their talents to use for the betterment of the school and the enjoyment of the community. One of the triumphs of the 1965 chorus season was the "On Broadway: Two Nights" production, which afforded the public an opportunity to hear Broadway musicals superbly performed. Many hours of study and rehearsal went into the staging of such scenes as the elaborate spectacle from the hit musical "Gigi."

Williams realizes many ways to recognize outstanding students for their service to the school and its organizations.

One such honor group is the Spanish National Honor Society, which, in its annual induction ceremony, recognizes students for their dedicated service to the Spanish Club, El Círculo Español, and for their exceptional work in the study of the Spanish language.

The fullest expression of service to the school and community comes through the service clubs at WHS. These organizations have become vital in providing services to the school through their individual projects. These clubs cooperate to provide assistance in the library, doing such work as opening the library before school in the mornings, holding "open night" weekly, and purchasing and cataloguing new books. Students find work on such projects rewarding and satisfying experiences.

in Athletics . . .

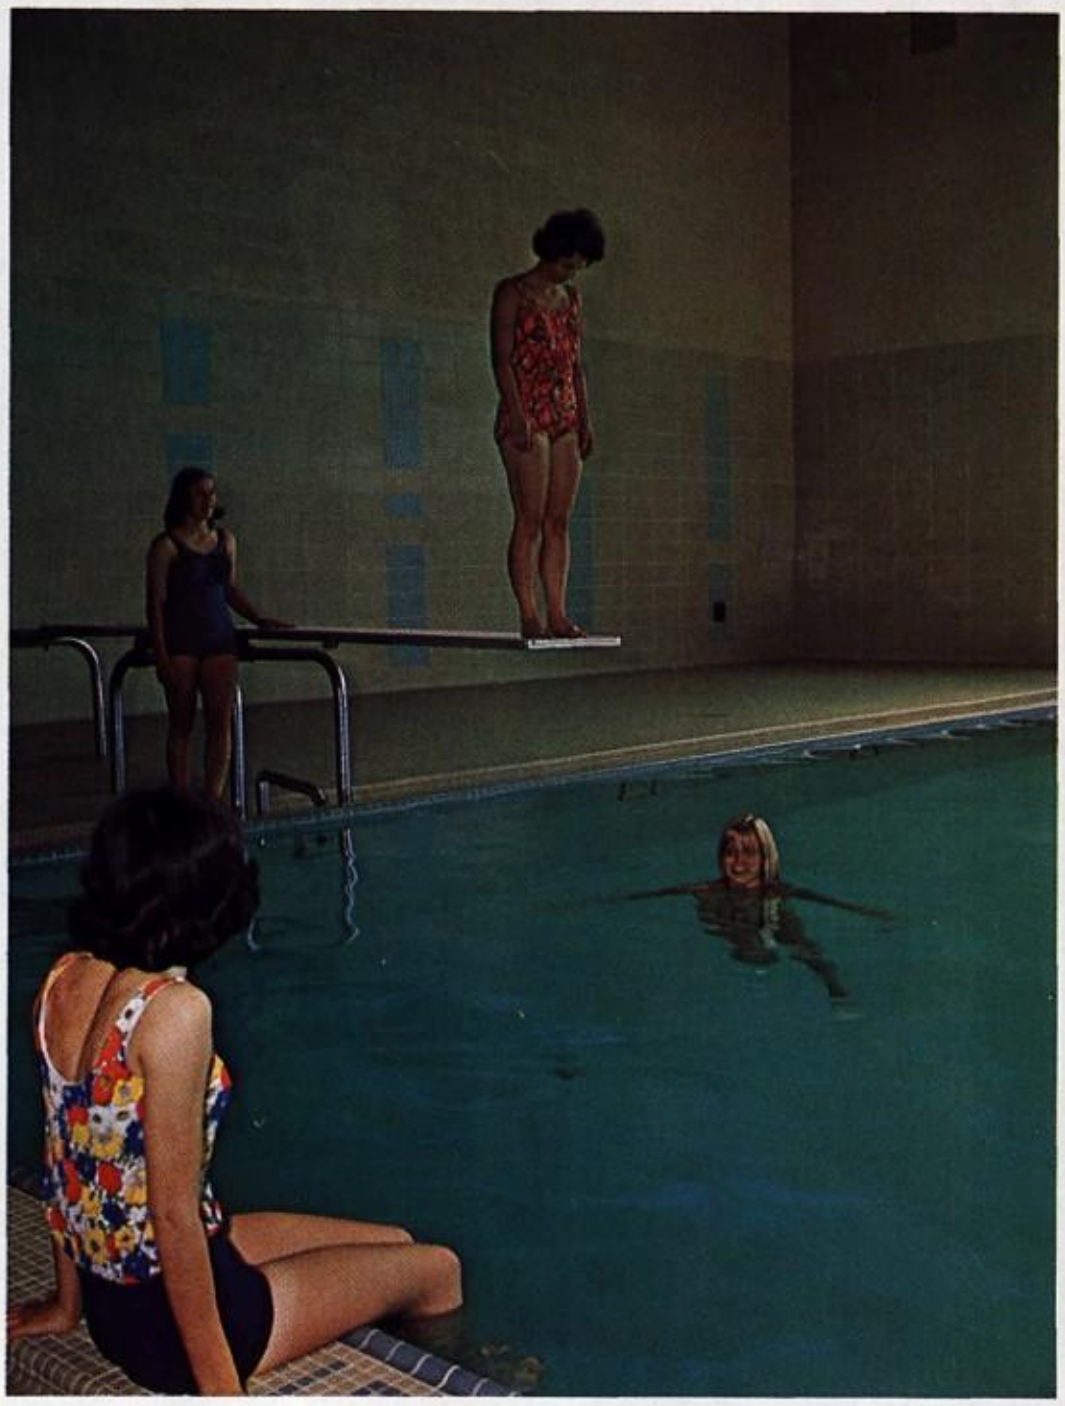
Athletics creates a sense of pride that students have in their school. The athletes and the cheerleaders work together to develop this pride into a feeling of true school spirit. Through its athletic program, WHS achieves superior results from hard efforts both by the athletes and by the entire student body.



At Williams, there is a widely varied athletic program that includes a large part of the student body. These programs, ranging from swimming in the winter at the local YMCA to golf in the spring, enable students to find suitable sports that will develop their physical needs and instill in them a sense of sportsmanship and fair play.

in Enjoyment

Throughout our years of study at Walter M. Williams High School, our search for knowledge requires the largest segment of our time and the greatest amount of our energy. In the conquest for truth, we probe beneath the surfaces of many academic fields, and our search is facilitated by the books that virtually encompass our lives. Therefore, in an age when we take the printed page for granted, it is appropriate that the symbol for the academic section of our yearbook should be the scroll—originally a handwritten manuscript often wound on a core of wood extending from either end to form a shapely scroll.

For the student in Alexandria, Egypt, home of the world's best ancient library, research was difficult. He found his material labeled and stored on library shelves like rolls of wall paper. Since the manuscripts were not alphabetized, the rolls most in demand were placed on top of the pile, and regardless of when he needed to begin his study, he had to unwind each scroll and open the book at its beginning.

Today our class work is supplemented by thousands of volumes—alphabetized, indexed and classified—covering almost every field from advanced algebra to zoology. Our search for knowledge, in fact, would be severely hampered if we had to survive for a single day without the printed page in one form or another—textbooks—dictionaries—reference material—telephone directories—time-tables—books of all kinds. With the scroll representing the printed page, it therefore becomes the dynamo of civilization, providing us with the light needed to study the past, see the present, and seek the future, and the power required to keep us always moving onward.

Administrators Execute

DR. BRANK PROFFITT

During the past three years, we have been witnesses to the advancement and development which have taken place under the capable leadership of our superintendent, Dr. Proffitt. His dedication and zest in working to attain a goal, that of a better and more co-ordinated system of Burlington City Schools, has shown to all of us that he is not only able but well-qualified to serve in the distinguished office he now holds.

Assistant Superintendents

This year the Burlington City Schools System has two assistant superintendents, with Mr. Harvey Newlin in charge of instruction and Dr. Fred Young in charge of personnel. By a division of responsibilities it has been possible to achieve a greater coordination between personnel and the over-all curriculum.

DR. FRED YOUNG

Effective School Policies

School Board

Composed of civic-minded members appointed by the Burlington City Council, the Burlington Board of Education perform their duties without pay. Appointed for six year staggered terms, their duties include encouraging the development and improvement of the city's educational program, electing a superintendent of schools, and adopting a budget. The present members are Seated: Mr. Joe Mann, Mr. S. B. Holt, Mr. Carlysle Isley (chairman), Mr. Earl Pardue. Standing: Dr. W. D. Rippy, Mr. A. A. Alston, Dr. W. C. Shanks.

Administrative Staff

To capably handle and co-ordinate the varied programs and activities in the schools of the Burlington City School System is the difficult task admirably performed by the administrative staff. The members are as follows: Seated: Miss Marie Houser, Supervisor of Art; Miss Eva Wiseman, Supervisor of Choral and Public School Music; Mrs. Hazel E. Strickland, Supervisor of Elementary Education; and Mrs. Margaret Porter, Attendance Counselor. Standing: Mr. Lester Ridenhour, Director of Secondary Education; Dr. Fred Young, Assistant Superintendent of Instruction; Mr. Paul Biggers, Supervisor of Audio-Visual and NDEA; and Mr. Paul Lentz, Supervisor of Buildings and Grounds.

School Administration

Principal

As he shoulders the duties and responsibilities of guiding a large high school to new goals, Mr. Harrington is aware of his tremendous tasks. For four years he has served as principal of WHS. Each year the school has grown in size and scope.

This year he has demonstrated his capacity for leadership during the evaluation conducted by the Southern Association of Secondary Schools and the North Carolina Department of Public Instruction. Because he works for us and with us, we take pride in commending Mr. Harrington for his dedication to duty.

MR. WHITEHURST

Assistant Principal

In his new position and surroundings, Mr. Zeb Whitehurst demonstrates daily why he has been selected assistant principal at WHS coming to us from his duties as Assistant Principal at Turrentine Junior High School, he fits easily into the day-to-day routine of our life at Williams.

A high-light of his work this year has been the efficiency with which he handled his tasks as Co-chairman of the North Carolina Student Congress Committees. Working with Mrs. Bright in the important job, the committees have been able to guide this year's N.C.S.C.C. at Burlington to a successful session. His dedication to duty and his personal integrity earn for Mr. Whitehurst the DOE-WAH-JACK'S badge of approval.

Provides Capable Leadership

Secretaries

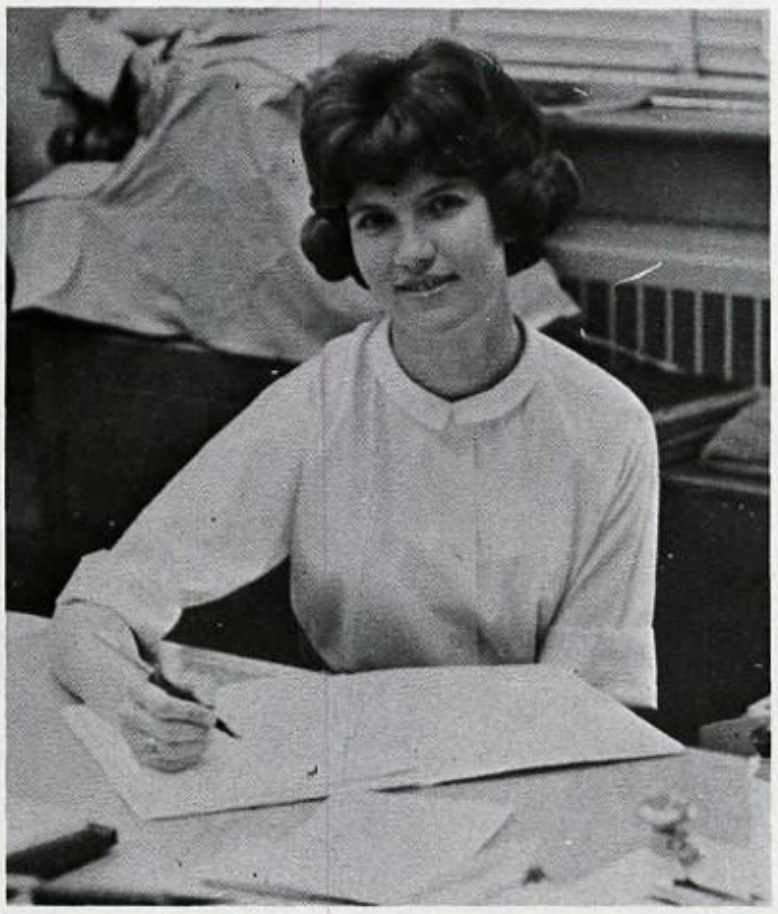
MRS. FRANK BENNETT

Mrs. Frank Bennett, secretary to Mr. Whitehurst since December 1, 1965, has many duties. Her responsibilities do not cease with the collection of attendance slips, for she must contact parents by telephone and determine why students are absent. She also checks excuses to insure their validity, issues the daily attendance bulletin, and secures substitutes for teachers who are absent. Because she does her work accurately and pleasantly, we commend her for her invaluable service.



MRS. REBECCA HARRISON

Mrs. Rebecca Harrison, secretary to Mr. Harrington, has been at Williams High School since March of 1965. In addition to performing such secretarial duties as typing, taking dictation, keeping records, and answering the telephone in the principal's office, Mrs. Harrison finds time to answer the many questions she is asked every day. The performance of her duties is an important factor in maintaining orderliness in the office and throughout the school. We salute her because she is efficient, helpful and congenial.

Staff Members Provide

Librarians

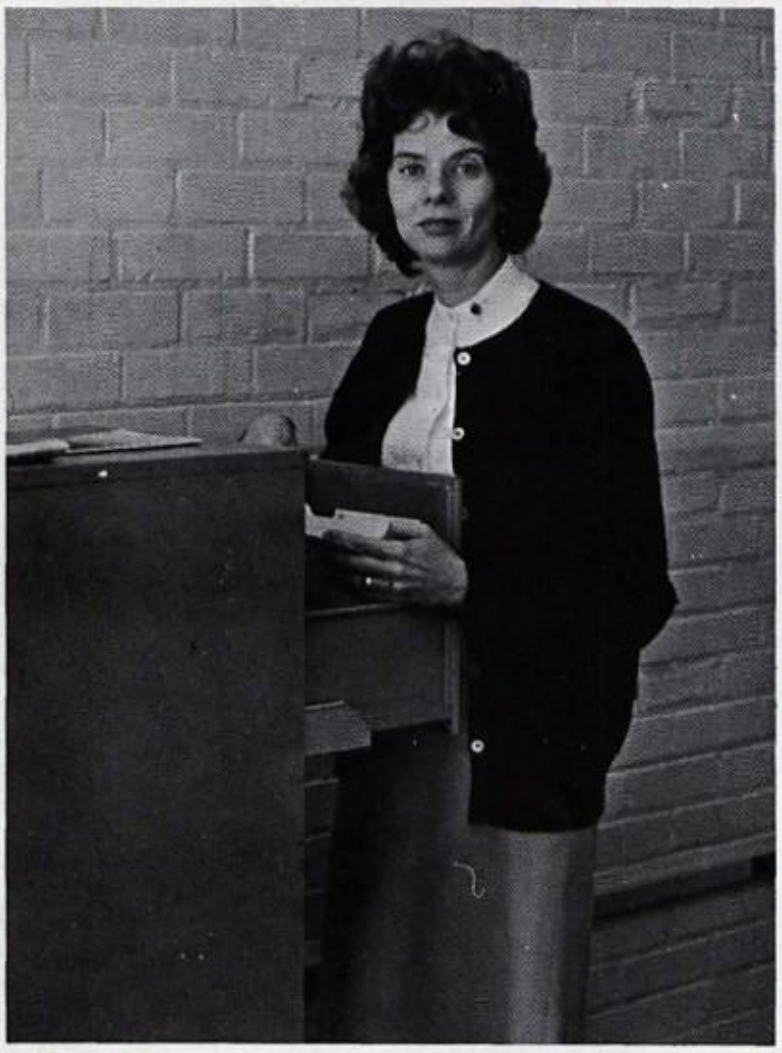
Our librarians are responsible for ordering and cataloguing books and making them available to students. Other services include collecting and reserving books for special assignments, arranging for classes to do research as a group, and allowing students to get a birds'-eye view of new books by displaying them before they are catalogued. A vast materials center, the library now has approximately eight books per student. Its collection includes selections in a number of foreign languages, including Latin, French, and Spanish, and this year it houses the school's audio-visual aids.



Mrs. Dimos, in her new capacity as guidance counselor at WHS, is always present to listen to our problems and helps students plan for a profitable future.

Guidance Counselors

Miss Janis Meggs, one of our two guidance counselors, is always willing to provide students with valuable information concerning high school curriculum, college requirements, and choices of careers.

Services Daily

Maintenance Chief

Mr. Yarbrough, affectionately labeled "Sam" by the students at Williams, is our Maintenance Chief. He performs such varied tasks as replacing burned out fluorescent tubes to adjusting the microphone in the auditorium. One of his biggest assets however is the pleasant manner in which he executes these duties.

Cafeteria Manager

To plan well-balanced meals and to over-see the cooking and serving of lunch are the mammoth tasks Mrs. Tomlinson assumes as cafeteria manager. Special menus are planned for holiday seasons such as Thanksgiving and Christmas, and two plates containing nutritional foods are served throughout the school year.

Custodians

Responsible for such services as keeping the building clean, and the corridors and classrooms heated, our custodians perform many other tasks. Included in these extras are such courtesies as opening a locked classroom for a student who forgot a needed book, or helping the DOE-WAH-JACK staff get rid of empty cartons on Annual Day. Two of our faithful custodians are Louise Jefferies and John Stanfield who have served loyally for a number of years.

English Probes the Many Areas

From adjective to antonym, from participle to poetry, through sentence and novel structure, eager students examine the many facets of the colorful English language. This year for the first time, grammar, composition, and literature have been correlated, and students review the fundamentals of grammar, see how the great masters of the language use the rules, and then do creative work.

This year, to provide for the diversified needs of its students, the English classes offer modified, regular, enriched, and advanced programs of study. Students planning to become office workers are provided with the pretechnical training they need, while others seeking to pursue a regular program, or to achieve advanced placement in college are also offered work which enables them to reach their goals. All, however, are provided with training in the basic fundamentals of the language, and many become aware that the ideas and ideals expressed in the world's best literature remain virtually the same in all ages.

Foreign Language Courses

Three foreign languages are taught at our high school, with two years of Latin, three of Spanish, and five of French now being taught. Fifth year French is being offered for the first time, and additional courses in the other languages are in the planning stage.

Through textbooks, films, record players, and tape recorders, today's foreign language student learns not only grammar, pronunciation and enunciation, but he becomes aware of the history, the geography, and the government of other nations as he studies many aspects of their cultures. This year the appearance of several Spanish-speaking students from Guatemala adds to our understanding of other parts of the world and increases our determination to remove the language barriers that separate nations.

Of all the sciences, mathematics is the only exact one. Advanced math students will be the first to verify this fact, for an error in simple addition is often responsible for a student's failure to arrive at the solution of a trigonometry equation. Advanced algebra and trigonometry, are only two facets of the mathematics program at WHS, however. There is General Math II, which provides an over-all study of the fundamentals and is designed primarily for the student who does not plan to enter college. To build a solid foundation for those who plan to pursue future courses in mathematics, the department offers Algebra I, which trains the student in logical thinking. Also there is Algebra II, a more intense study of the same course, which includes work with equations, practical word problems and introductory work with logarithms and irrational numbers. Plane, solid, and analytical geometry offer excellent opportunities for the student to develop his critical reasoning. He must determine the nature of the problem, analyze it and attempt to solve it. The student may further intensify his knowledge of mathematics through a study of analytical geometry.

The mathematics department of WHS, under the instruction of capable teachers, prepares the conscientious student for leadership in the fields of science and engineering.

Expanding Science Department Adds

Through an expanded program, the Science Department of Williams High School is designed to meet more needs of more people. Courses in general biology and physical science are offered to those students who wish to meet the minimum requirements for graduation, while chemistry and physics meet the requirements of those individuals who plan to pursue careers in engineering, nursing, medicine, pharmacy, or related fields.

A new area of science is given additional impetus with the introduction of advanced biology to the curriculum. In the planning stage for several years, this course has been built on strong foundations, for the excellent compilation of data and a wide selection of specimens and photographic material have been made. The ecological studies of this year's pilot group add wealth to the material designed to benefit future classes in this field.

To gain a thorough education in an age of international crisis, historical perspective is mandatory. Before today's problems can be solved, man needs to probe the past and consider its solutions to recurring problems.

In order that students may know how the world has become what it is, courses are offered in all areas of social science, beginning with world history, and continuing with United States history, sociology, economics, family relations, world geography, and international affairs.

There are many instances in which a knowledge of social sciences is practical to a student in a democratic society. The revision of our own high school constitution has been simplified

Economics and sociology also offer practical experience to seniors who become familiar with Dow Jones averages, chasing bears and bulls in the stock market, respecting a divergent opinion, or becoming a member of the "Get-Rich-Quick-Club"—on paper at least—by realizing a $500.00 profit on a $1000.00 stock purchase.

Business arithmetic, typing, and shorthand are courses offered each year, but these are only rudimentary. Indexing and coding are familiar terms to those engaged in filing, and binary computers, card collators, punched card and tape, magnetic ink, and computer memory unit are essential words to those seeking to understand the automation unit. Typewriters are still essential to the Business Department, but many of the new models are electric, and duplicators, mimeographs, thermo fax, adding and calculating machines, and bookkeeping and transcribing machines are now being used by students planning to pursue careers in the business world.

Those students possessing a genuine appreciation of fine arts may cultivate this interest by participating in the courses offered in the Fine Arts Department. Offering a varied selection of cultural studies, the department provides classes in choral music, band, orchestra, art, dramatics, and fine arts survey. Those who possess a love of music find many hours of hard work and equal enjoyment in the chorus. Those students whose talents lie in the field of musical instruments derive satisfaction from improving their abilities through participation in the WHS band and orchestra.

In the art courses, the student evaluates his creative abilities and develops his own techniques in painting, sketching, and sculpturing. Art allows the individual a means of expression, and many fine works are produced in the department.

Bible

Three years of study are available to students who wish to find a deeper understanding of the Bible, and who wish to learn of its historical background. Bible I and Bible II offer a complete review of the Old Testament and the New Testament, while Bible Survey gives a very concise view of the Bible as a whole.

Driver Education

Driver Education teaches driving skills by preparing students to assume their roles as safe drivers. Divided into two parts, the program consists of thirty hours of classroom instruction, followed by eighteen hours of actual driving instruction. Through a knowledge of the rules, and training in their application, students are better equipped to become skillful, responsible drivers.

Home Economics

Because it is a course which offers training in the practical art of homemaking and opens doors to such career opportunities as dietetics, interior decorating and dress designing, home economics appeals to many high school girls. Included in their projects for the current year have been luncheons for their state supervisor, Mrs. Lyons, as well as for the homecoming finalists and judges, and their participation in the preparation of decorations and refreshments for the teachers' annual Christmas party.

A course in family relations consisting of the study of real life situations and their importance to the individual enables the student to plan for a more rewarding adult life.

So important is light to all facets of civilization that throughout history the torch has been used to symbolize many abstract ideas, including knowledge, freedom, and service. Athletes participating in the Olympic games carry a torch now, as they did in 770 B.C., and the president of the games still hopes ". . . that the Olympic torch may be carried on with greater eagerness, courage, and honor for the good of humanity, throughout the ages." The Statue of Liberty on Bedloes Island also carries a torch—hers a symbol of freedom—and her message—

Give me your tired, your poor, your huddled masses yearning to breathe free . . .
Send these, the homeless, the tempest tost to me,
I lift my torch beside the golden door.

—reflects the spirit of the flame she bears. The eternal torch at John F. Kennedy's grave in Arlington Cemetery likewise reiterates the fact that, like the flame, duty and service cannot be extinguished.

At Walter M. Williams High School the torch is one of the four parts of our seal, and it symbolizes the many areas of service with which the administration, the faculty, and the student body are identified. As the administration seeks to provide us with the facilities for learning, they enable us to open the doors to the wide world of knowledge that surrounds us. As our teachers stimulate us to ask questions and to seek answers, they make us aware of the expanding horizons that lie beyond the threshold of our high school years. As individual members of our student body perform a variety of duties in class room or club, on the athletic fields or in assembly, our symbol of service becomes a flaming torch. It is through such activities that the torch is passed to succeeding generations of Williams High School students—each proud of its heritage of service.

Serving as a nucleus for student affairs at WHS, the Student Council and its affiliated governmental organizations carry the torch of leadership for the student body. Student Council activities cover a wide range of responsibilities, such as the nomination of candidates for student body officers, the supervision of the Student Council Committees, and the completion of service projects for the school and the community.

The Inter-Club Council, an organization designed to co-ordinate the activities of the twenty-four clubs at WHS, strives to unite the clubs for more beneficial service. Headed by the vice-president of the student body, the council also functions in a judiciary capacity by seeing that the requirements for club membership are maintained by all students.

The Executive Committee of the Student Council operates as the executive authority. Composed of the student body officers and the presidents of the classes, the Executive Committee has jurisdiction over and is responsible for the actions of both the Student Council and the Inter-Club Council. All the branches of government strive to build good citizenship, develop effective leaders, and to maintain the high standards of achievement so typical at WHS.

A subscribing member of the Columbia Scholastic Press Association, the Barker strives to maintain the high standards of journalism set forth by that organization, and works continually for a betterment of style and educational roles.

Publishing a newspaper that will please the students and at the same time report accurately the important events of the school program is a difficult task, but the Barker staff works diligently and untiringly toward that dual goal. The product of their labor is presented to the Student Body six times each year and the reading public eagerly anticipates each issue.

Tri-Hi-Y Members Uphold Principles of Character and Service

Under the sponsorship of the Young Men's Christian Association, the Tri-Hi-Y of Williams High School is composed of girls who seek to promote Christian principles through daily living. Each year the club engages in projects which assist civic groups in attaining their goals, and holiday seasons find them helping others by their contributions of time and gifts. A highlight of this year has been a visit by Bobby Richardson, second baseman for the New York Yankees. Brought to Burlington as a representative of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, Mr. Richardson's participation in our chapel program on Homecoming Day, and his assistance with the dedication of the new facilities at the YMCA are examples of the service given by the Tri-Hi-Y and the parent organization.

Since this club's organization at WHS in 1954 as the first of its kind, the Junior Exchange Club members have worked faithfully to exemplify its motto, "Unity for Service."

They have rendered service to their school by participating in various school projects. These activities include issuing the WHS pocket bulletin, publishing the school cheers for all students, polishing desks throughout the school once a semester, donating the large plywood bulldog head for the gymnasium, and publishing the Junior Exchange Messenger.

Club members have served in our community by distributing publicity for the Reading Dynamics Course, planning a bingo party for the men in Veteran's Hospital in Durham, sponsoring and editing the "From the Classroom" article in the Daily Times News, assisting in clean-up campaigns and by sponsoring a Christmas food drive for the Salvation Army.

Continue Old Projects, Initiate New Ones

Although their club has been an organization for only three years, the Junior Exchangettes have worked diligently to uphold the club's creed—"Unity for Service". In an effort to become better citizens and to promote a better community and school for all, these girls have undertaken numerous worthwhile projects.

Included in their activities have been conducting a picnic for the Elon orphans, erecting a bulletin board and calendar for school and club activities, giving the teachers a tea during American Education Week, providing a hat and coat check for students during basketball season, giving Valentine candy to the teachers, assisting in cleaning the faculty lounge, sorting pictures for the annual staff, and working actively with the Tuberculosis and Cancer Associations.

The main purpose of the Junior Civitan Club is to achieve the Civitan goal of good citizenship through service to the school and the community. Among the projects and activities of the club are raising and lowering the American flag, presenting an assembly program with an internationally known speaker, cleaning Burlington Memorial Stadium, working on Tuberculosis, Heart Fund, and March of Dimes fund drives, and providing Christmas cheer for needy families. Two new projects of the Junior Civitans this year, are the presentation of a victory bell to the student body and the donation of money for the construction of a marquee in front of the school. Also in conjunction with the Civinettes, club members conducted successful magazine sales and built a prize-winning Homecoming float. Through valuable service to the school and community and through co-operation with the Senior Civitan, these boys are "Builders of Good Citizenship."

Sale for Money Raising Project

The Junior Civinettes of WHS hold membership in the N.C. District of Junior Civitan, and uphold the qualifications for membership through active service to school and community. Club members serve the school in many ways by maintaining three bulletin boards, helping other clubs clean school grounds, assisting with College Day and presenting a Teacher-of-the-Year Award. This year with help from the Jr. Civitan Club, the Civinettes have constructed a prize-winning float for the Homecoming parade.

The club also serves the community by assisting with the United Fund, the T.B. Association, and the Mental Health Department, and by helping the Elon Orphanage. Each year, Civinettes adopt a "little sister," for whom they provide clothing, money for lunch and cheer at Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter. This year, the club has also conducted a successful magazine and fruitcake sale.

KEY CLUB

The WHS Key Club serves the community, the school, and the individual with a well-rounded program of service and social activities. A "key" service club in the community, the group has aided various charitable organizations and worked with other service clubs. As well as these projects, various services to the school help to build the character and leadership indicative of a Key Club member.

The most important club project is the publishing of the Key Club Student-Faculty Directory. Over one thousand man-hours of work are spent in the selling of advertisements, compilation of names, folding of pages, distribution, and collection of bills. In recognition of their work, members' names and addresses are listed in bold-face type. Honored by this year's club, Mr. Sam Yarbrough is the Directory's deserving dedicatee.

KEYETTES

The theme, "The Highest of Distinction is Service to Others," is displayed daily through the actions of the members of the Keyette Club. Working with the Heart Fund and the American Cancer Society drives, and giving parties for mentally retarded children, this group assists the community in many areas of service. Assisting teachers with the preparation of bulletin boards, and selling paperback books in the library are two projects that aid the school. Competing with the Key Club in a wheelbarrow race and joining them in making the winning float are recreational projects the members enjoy. Through working together the individuals in this organization share rich experiences as they accomplish mutual goals.

D. Miller and C. Mann, along with Mr. Evans, plan the menu for the French Club Christmas party.

To create a greater interest and understanding in the people, customs, and language of France than can be derived from classroom study is the purpose of Le Cercle Francais. Composed of those students having a 90% average and having completed four semesters in the language, the club works through such aids as films and speakers to augment the students' knowledge of the language. A highlight of the club year is the annual program presented during December by students from the Burlington Day School in which they present, totally in French, a medley of Christmas music.

Le Cercle Francais takes a gigantic step forward in 1965-1966 with the creation of the French National Honor Society. With twenty-six charter members, this group intends to make French a spoken language within the society.

El Círculo Español Welcomes Visitors from Guatemala

Since classroom instruction alone cannot provide students with an adequate knowledge of a foreign language and the cultures of Spanish-speaking people, the Spanish Club supplements text book and blackboard work. Joining the Business and Professional Women's Club in the co-sponsorship of an exchange program, El Círculo Español has welcomed eight students from Guatemala to WHS. These students have spent three weeks living in the homes of students and visiting classes. As they return to Guatemala, they take with them an increased understanding of our culture and leave behind them a legacy of friendship and greater appreciation of their contributions to our modern world.

T. McAdams sits quietly as D. Sorrell, P. Hogan, and H. Liles explain their idea for a club project.

The Speech and Debating Club has as its major objectives, the encouragement of high school speech activities and the development of speaking potential in students at the high school level. These objectives are met through the many projects and activities in which the club members participate, thus creating an enthusiasm for their work in the club. Through such projects as the presentation of speeches by club members in both impromptu and planned form, the sponsoring of student speakers for the Student Body, and the study of the methods of good speaking, the members improve their innate abilities, and often gain high recognition as public orators. The ability to communicate well is essential in a complex modern world, and the Speech and Debating Club trains its members so that they may contribute their ideas to society.

Public Speaking is an art, and like all other arts must be developed to be practiced and appreciated. A new constitution, adopted this year helps the club operate on a more efficient basis, and provides a better foundation for the organization to fulfill its goals.

The Scribblers' Club Stimulates Student Writers

Few schools can boast an organization that works full-time to achieve only one goal—better writing—but this is the sole purpose of the WHS Scribblers Club. Open only to students who can and will produce good copy, this club instills in its members a desire to write for publication. This year a number of its members are entering the North Carolina English Teachers' Association's annual contest for student writers, and others are working on manuscripts to be submitted in the club's own contest, which recognizes outstanding work in the fields of poetry, the essay, and the short story. Plans for the current school year include the publication of a newsletter containing both news and views of the present members.

William Shakespeare once said, "The play's the thing." The Dramatics Club, with this in mind, strives to present before its fellow students an accurate and inspiring idea of the talent, organization, and creativity involved in the presentation of a play.

Club members and other interested students contribute much of their time to the work accomplished by stage crews, while those in the cast spend long hours in concentrated memorization of lines. During the school year a play, Have A Heart, has been presented with the purpose of entertaining the students, as well as providing experience for those interested in the theatre as a career.

An organization such as the Monogram Club gives credit to the deserving athletes who represent Williams High School in its comprehensive sports program and provides services which make everyone aware of the importance of keen competition. The club makes its presence felt through the activities of its members, who serve as ushers for football and basketball games, sell refreshments at athletic events, provide buses for out-of-town games, print and sell programs for home games, and finance the purchase of jackets for senior members. A more recent project is the establishment of a scholarship fund, thus extending the club's influence into still another phase of campus life.

One of the most outstanding features of the fine arts program at WHS is the school orchestra. Directed by Mr. Corne, and presided over by Susan Abernethy, concert mistress, the Senior Orchestra provides for its members a basic introduction to all kinds of music. The programs range from the complex, intense works of the early masters such as Bach, Beethoven and Brahms, to the lighter works of Broadway composers. Through a study of these varied kinds of music, the orchestra members learn the changes of style and mastery over the centuries, and learn, through the actual performance of these works, skill at their instruments and fundamentals of musical theory.

The orchestra proves to be a beneficial educational medium for the Student Body as well as for its members. The programs give the students an opportunity to hear music performed by their peers, thus creating a more enthusiastic interest for the world of great music. Because the orchestra concerts are varied in the selections performed, its members are well received by the students and community and are lauded for their continued standard of excellence.

The bulldog, according to some writers, is a descendant of the fighting dog of the early Bretons, a large, broad-mouthed canine of tremendous strength, often used as a war dog. Roman writers praise it for its extraordinary fighting skill, and the Latin poet Claudius notes that it possesses the ability to pull down a bull.

The first mention of the word bulldog occurs in a letter written in England in 1632 in which Prestwick Eaton asks George Willingham to "pray procuer mee two good Bulldogges and let them be sent by ye first shipp."

The bulldog rates highly as a mascot among American schools because of its strength, its tenacity, and its stubborn determination. Uga serves as mascot for the University of Georgia, Handsome Dan IX boosts the morale of the Yale "Bulldogs," and George inspires the athletic teams at Walter M. Williams High School. In our mascot we have one of the finest of the breed—a bulldog "with a massive, shortfaced head, a low-swung, thickset body, short legs and tail, a flat forehead with a large, broad, black nose, thin ears, set wide apart, and a massive, square undershot lower jaw." To us he symbolizes spirit because he possesses the strength, the singleness of purpose, and the stubborn determination that challenge us to work harder to bring honor to our school.

With physical fitness playing an ever increasing role in the education of high school students, the coaching staff at Williams has molded the athletic program into one of the finest in the state. Their purpose and goal is to instruct young men in athletic skills and to develop in them the spirit of good sportsmanship. Williams' physical education program and athletic teams have gained state-wide recognition and praise for many years.

Not only does the coach instruct athletes on the field, but also students in the classroom. He must constantly be aware of the example that he sets, for there are many who wish to follow him.

G. Sutphen gives the extra effort needed to finish in the mile run.

Led by tri-captains Mike Garrison, Eddie Hicklin, and Skip Whitenack, the 1965 track squad attained the goal that Williams High trackmen have never reached before—the Central 4-A conference championship. In addition to this impressive accomplishment, Coach Kerry Richard's cindermen rolled over five other teams in the Alamance County track meet and captured all but one of the regular season meets. The 1965 squad included many standouts such as Mike Garrison, running the 100 and 220 yard dashes, Eddie Hicklin in the 440 yard dash and relays, George Sutphin in the mile run, and John Hopper in the shot put. Other distinctive performers were Pete Burgess, Bobby Lilien, Tommy Wrenn, Jim Tatum, Kris Arnold, and Jim Lee. With many fine veterans returning, Coach Richards is looking forward to another conference championship.

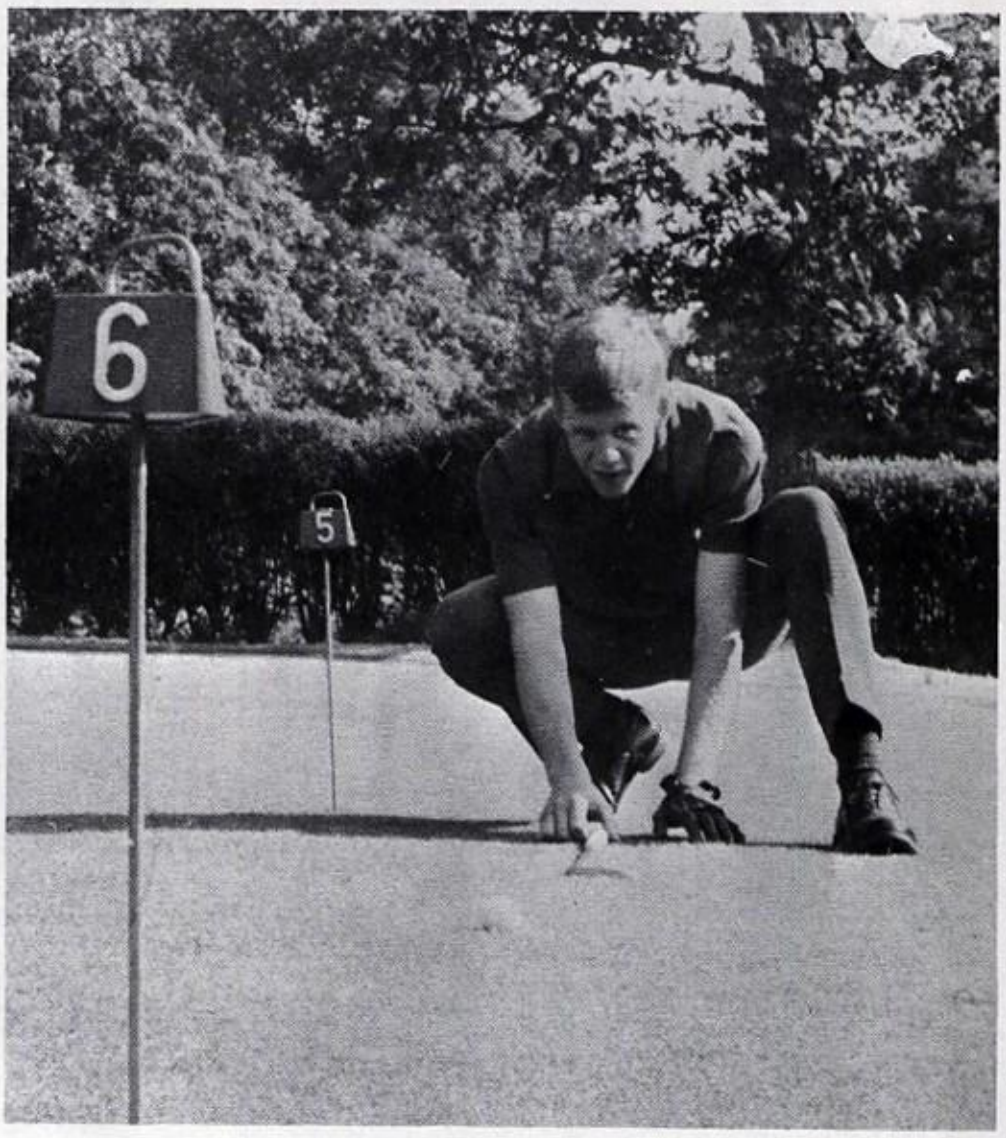
Coach Gordon Isley's linksmen once again managed to finish high in the Central 4-A golf race, as the Bulldogs grabbed the number three spot. Behind the able play of such men as Mike Spann, Larry Long, Scott Isley, and Steve Webster, the WHS forces were more than able to hold their own against the tough competition. Spann and Long proved they had plenty of talent, as both were among the top ten golfers in the conference. Next year's golf squad will contain many returning players with valuable experience behind them. Golfers such as Rick Kimball, Bobo Hagood, and Sam Robinson will provide a fine nucleus around which will be built the contending squad of 1966.



R. Kimball checks lay of the green.

Tennis team takes second place

The 1965 WHS tennis team further upheld the school's winning tradition by placing second in the final standings of the conference. Winning nine of the scheduled eleven matches, the Bulldog netmen proved that each member of the squad was strong individually, as is evidenced by the large victory margin in many matches. The number one and two men on the Bulldog squad, Charles Chance and Mike Meachum, advanced to the State Meet in Chapel Hill at the end of the regular season. The same two players performed in the Sectional Meet, where Chance reached the finals, and Meachum the semi-finals. The 1966 tennis squad will miss not only Chance and Meachem, but also other such stalwart performers as Don Doornheim, David Pardue, Bobby Webster, and Rodney Benson. But with such fine returning veterans as John Walton, Ricky Wolfe, Harold Pollard, and Scott Pollard, the future for Coach Wiggins' chargers looks bright.

Coach Frye leaves mound after instructing pitchers.

The Baseball Year of 1965 was mainly a rebuilding one for WHS. This year showed a small number of boys coming out and because of this, talent was scarce. David Allred's fielding, Robin Hawley's hitting along with Dave Bennett's pitching led the team. One victory was against Gray, which eventually won the conference championship. The other was against Graham in a non-conference contest.

Coach Isley will take over as head baseball coach this year replacing Coach Frye. Leading his team will be David Bowes, Jimmy Allred, Chuck McClintock and Melvin Simmons. With these fine performers returning, the 1966 baseball squad is assured of a much improved record.

Bulldogs capture first

Central 4-A Championship

The 1965 edition of the Williams High football team proved on the field that they have had all the qualities of a real champion. Combining a stingy defense with a powerful running attack, the Bulldogs have grabbed an undisputed Central 4-A Conference Championship, the first in sixteen years. The only blemish on the Bulldogs' conference record is a 6-6 tie with Greensboro Grimsley, with the Bulldogs sweeping by six other conference foes.

This year's team has produced a few standouts such as Dickie Wilburn, Bill Gee, and Carlyle Pate, but the rest of the team has talent, also, as is indicated by the number of Bulldogs who have been chosen for the all conference squad. The eleven Burlington men on the field at any time can be counted on to give an all-out effort to win. Even when down, 19-6, as against Lexington, the desire for victory pushed the Bulldogs onward to overcome the deficit and earn a 22-19 victory.

Under the able direction of Coach C. A. Frye and his assistants, the Burlington eleven dropped only one game to undefeated Durham during the regular season, and a hard-fought loss to Fayetteville in the semi-final round of the Eastern Division Playoffs.

Next season Bulldog followers will miss hearing the names of players such as Pate, Gee, Wilburn, Reddick, McLelland, Sharpe, Pendergrass, Casey, and Maness. But returning faces, including Burgess, Isley, Loy, and Allred, brighten the prospect for the 1966 Bulldog forces.

The Bulldogs illustrate the kind of teamwork that won them the conference championship, as Dover Sharpe runs through a large hole in the Smith line, created by Dickie Wilburn's key block.

Pete Burgess follows Carlyle Pate's block for short yardage against Fayetteville. Burgess, changing from wingback to tailback, proved to be a great asset for the Bulldogs during the latter half of the season.

Under the able direction of coach Gordon Isley, the 1965 WHS Junior Varsity enjoyed another winning season, compiling a record of five wins and three losses. The Bullpups used husky linemen and fast shifty backs to their advantage as they rolled past opponents.

Since the Junior Varsity schedule includes only Central 4-A Conference members, the WHS squad well proved that they can more than hold their own against conference foes. Standouts on the squad such as Clint Holt, Bobby Bishop, Don Walker, Emmett Moore, and Larry Haith are rated as fine prospects for next year's Varsity eleven.

Coach Wiggins with Co-Captains Blackwell and Pollard.

The 1966 WHS basketball squad has relied upon teamwork and cooperation to compile a record of 12 wins and 4 losses with only four conference games left on the schedule. Coach "Twig" Wiggins has effectively used his two-platoon system to wear down opposition, and his method has gained the Bulldogs third place in the conference standings. The Burlington cagers utilize not only the experience of performers like Harold Pollard, Hank Traynham, Tommy Blackwell, Jim Lee, and David Bowes, but also the new talent provided by juniors Dale Gipple, Chuck McClintock, Robbie Hicklin, and Eddie Harrington.

This year's team is characterized by unselfish play and teamwork. Many times Burlington players will give up a good shot to pass to a teammate who has a better shot. Using this type of play, the WHS basketball team has an excellent chance to earn a playoff berth and a good chance of taking the conference championship.

Tommy Cole drops in a short one against Lexington foes.

The WHS junior varsity basketball squad has managed to maintain a winning record thus far this season against the tough competition offered by the other conference teams. Coach Kerry Richard's charges have compiled a 7-6 record already, and the four remaining games may easily complete a winning schedule. The J.V.'s play has been sparked by Tommy Cole and Ed Kendrick, and valuable contributions to the team's success have been made by Andy Hensley, Clint Holt, Gary McCann, Danny Thompson, and Dicky Hogan. Coach Richards has used plenty of substitution in an effort to find the combination of boys that preform best together. In doing so, he has uncovered much talent that should lead to a winning season and future varsity triumphs.

The Williams High swimming team has added a new dimension to the world of sports at Williams. Because of interest in their team and determination to win, the WHS tankers spend many long hours practicing and conditioning at the YMCA. The squad is led by such standouts as Joe Canada in the 400 yard freestyle, Merrill Holt in the 100 yard freestyle, and Jerry Chappell in the 100 yard breaststroke. Gaining experience and ability with each meet, the swimming squad promises to finish the season in fine standing. Under the leadership and inspiration of Coach Ronnie Bell and due to the return of many fine underclassmen, the Bulldog tankers hope to lead the conference next year.

Relaying upon individual hard work and united team effort, the WHS wrestling squad has shown that they have found a winning combination. The grapplers have won an enviable record of seven matches while dropping only five, four being lost by no more than three points. Coach Dameron has depended largely upon the experience of such senior standouts as John Hooper, Jim Hinshaw, Ray Ridenhour, Bobby Long, and Mike Sykes, all of whom have contributed greatly to the team's effort. Additional strength has been supplied by underclassmen who will inevitably form a nucleus of next season's team.

Each wrestler deserves commendation and praise from the student body for his ceaseless efforts and strict discipline to training rules. The WHS matmen are now looking forward to their final test in the sectional and state meets.

The Varsity Cheerleaders are elected by a vote of the student body in the spring. A few months later, they are hard at work revising old cheers and devising new ones. After strenuous practice sessions, the cheerleaders are ready to spark enthusiasm and excitement that urge the Bulldogs to win. Their efforts rarely fail to mold the student body into one united surge of that intangible quality known as school spirit. These girls, because they keep both fans and team in a victory mood, deserve the praise of a student body which considers them to be a necessary and integral part of every athletic event.

Chosen by the student body, the clowns assist the cheerleaders in promoting better school spirit. Their antics amuse the crowds at athletic events, parades, and assemblies. In their new uniforms which were given to them by the Civinettes, this year's clowns have contributed much to school events. Their own enthusiasm and liveliness add humor and spirit to all phases of school life.

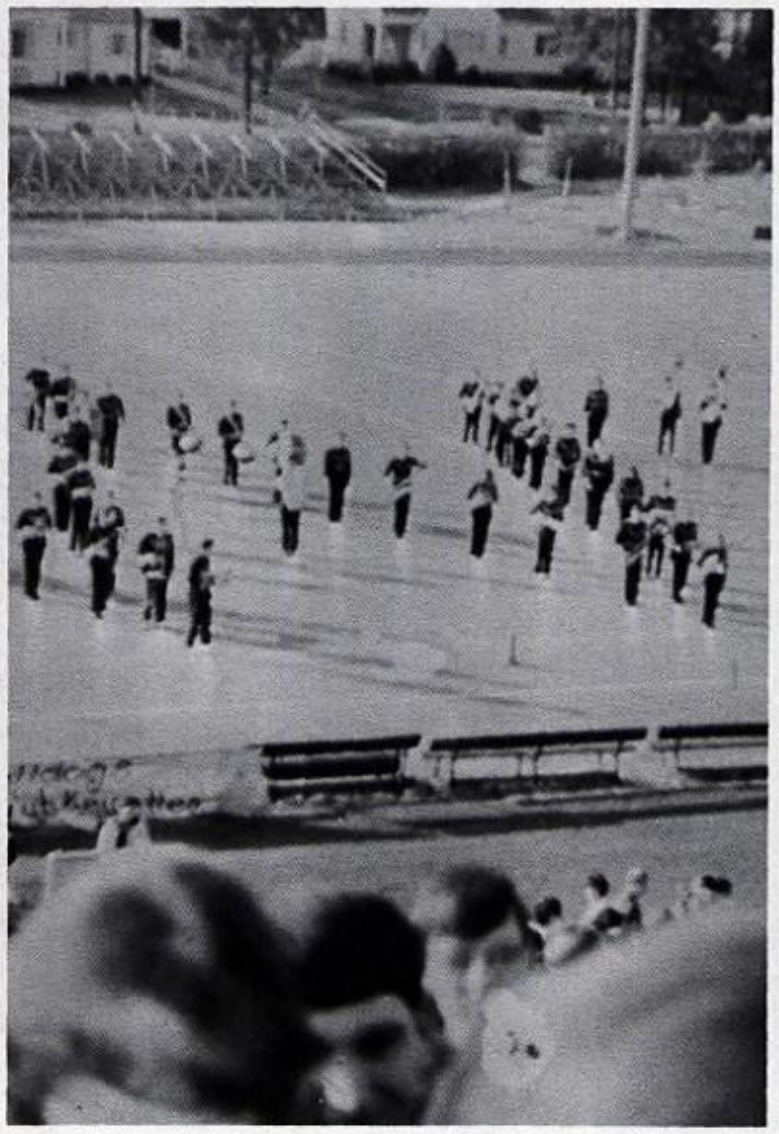
To help prepare the student for a happy and useful participation in a democratic society through the developement of team spirit, individual leadership, and careful study and preparation habits.



The WHS Band provides pomp and pageantry through colorful performances.

At Williams High School the band is one of the most active organizations, for its members provide music for assembly programs and athletic events as well as in special concerts. Under the direction of Johnny Register, drum major, its performers set the stage for important conference clashes by parading in their black and gold uniforms, while their flashing instruments echo and re-echo the tempo of the times.

In concert, Dr. Francis Pfeifer instructs the band members in the fundamentals of individual performance and group playing. Through a diversified program of study, students become skilled as solo performers and as a part of the organization. Through its performances as a marching unit at athletic events, and as a concert group on other occasions the WHS band bolsters school spirit and stimulates interest in the fine arts.

Majorettes

Much time and effort are required of the majorettes, and the 1965-1966 girls have been particularly talented and spirited. They have supplemented the activities of the band by providing innovations of their own which have increased the enthusiasm of the fans at Williams. These girls, after auditions, are chosen by the senior majorettes and the band instructor. This year's members have worked especially hard to perfect their routines as their contribution to the banner year Williams High teams have experienced in the athletic arena.

Throughout history, steps measure progress both literally and figuratively, for they chart our discoveries in the physical world and our advances in the abstract worlds of knowledge and power and spiritual attainment. They enable us to re-evaluate yesterday and to speculate about tomorrow—to become immersed in the past and to travel the unrouted spaceways of the future.

At Walter M. Williams High School, steps comprise one of the four parts of our seal. It is appropriate that they are an integral part of our emblem because they loom large in every area of school life, from campus to classroom, library to laboratory, auditorium to athletic field.

However, our seal not only represents the steel and concrete steps that surround us, but it also presents our stairs as symbols of achievements. These remind us that in the realms of fact and fancy, most advances are made a step at the time.

In scholastic attainment, in athletic prowess, in artistic development, in creative enterprise, we achieve by climbing steps, for there is still no space ship to success. The steps of our seal—with an unfinished area at the top where each individual must lay his own stones—challenge us to select our stars and to take, today, the first step toward reaching them.

To be considered for this high honor, a student must have maintained a scholastic average of above ninety per cent and must stand in the top fifteen per cent of his class. Working to promote higher standards of scholarship, service, leadership and character in our student body, the society sponsors two inductions, college day, and a scholarship each year. ## Salutatorian

The second highest degree of scholastic excellence designated to the high school senior is that of salutatorian. He, too, strives with extra effort to fulfill the goals set by himself and his teachers. From the class of 1966, we congratulate one whose academic record is second only to one, our salutatorian, Miss Kathy Hinshaw.

WHS students serve in

The many clubs and organizations at WHS provide excellent opportunities for students to develop leadership ability. However, there are also state, district, and international branches of the local organizations in which students may distinguish themselves. WHS boasts eleven such officers.

Duties and activities of these officers range from presiding over district meetings, serving on various committees, keeping minutes of the meetings and handling club funds, to serving as delegates to district and state conventions, and organizing new clubs at the local level. These students are to be commended, not only for their service to organizations in other schools, but also for their inspiration to student leaders at Williams High School.

Designed to promote more effective student participation in school affairs, the North Carolina Student Council Congress held its 39th annual convention this year at Walter Williams High School, November 7-9, inclusive. Delegates, including student council officers and faculty advisors, represented numerous high schools from across the state.

It was the responsibility of William's High School students to plan for the housing, the entertaining, and the education in the principles of good student council organization of these students. Through participation and interest in discussion groups, general sessions, speakers, and the many other activities of the Congress, students gained new ideas and much knowledge that will enable them to make their own Student Councils a more effective and significant force.

Homecoming 1965

Carol Goodes and Craig Swaim reign over the Homecoming activities at Williams High School.

It is mid-autumn in 1965 when the Spirit of Homecoming spreads across the campus of Williams High School. Then the leaves are transformed into gold and red flames, the traditional bonfires relighted, and an errant spark rekindles the enthusiasm of the present and past residents of this particular Bulldogland.

This year's festivities begin when fifteen semi-finalists compete for the honor of being Homecoming Queen, or one of her majesty's four senior attendants. With "As Time Goes By" bearing the theme for our fifteenth homecoming celebration, our candidates enter through a mammoth grandfather clock, while on stage a trio of three dimensional figures represent three stages in a woman's life.

"As Time Goes By" swiftly, the gala day arrives, with lovely ladies and fantastic floats highlighting our parade, and with the Key-Keyette and Junior Class presenting the most original float entries.

These are but a prelude to the homecoming extravaganza however, for the Williams Bulldogs are able to bulldoze the East Forsyth Eagles on the playing field and bury them beneath a 33-0 avalanche of points.

Finally as Queen Carol Goodes and King Craig Swaim reign over the festivities, assisted by senior attendants, the theme, "As Time Goes By," is illustrated in the formation of a large clock. The various sponsors and their escorts form the base, with band members forming the face and majorettes actively symbolizing the hands. Boot girls .add to the festivities. The celebration ends. However, even "As Time Goes By," the dark, star-studded sky accentuates the gold and black banners that still wave from the bleachers, and the Spirit of Homecoming lingers, an eternal and unmistakable torch.

The Homecoming finalists add beauty around the campus of Bulldogland. The girls are J. Brewer, C. Goodes, V. Summer, A. Hunt, and J. Durham.

'65 Prom re-enacts "A

Junior Class President, J. Napier presides over the 1965 Prom, and the coronation of Queen Sheryl Deal, and King David Bryan.

It is eight o'clock, the evening of April 30, 1965, at Walter M. Williams High School, the beginning of our annual Junior-Senior Prom. Formally-attired couples enter the gym via the drawbridge to a medieval castle. The theme of the event is "A Mid-Summer Night's Dream." And indeed, the entire setting is like a dream, a dream more vivid than even Shakespeare could depict. Fair young damsels move gracefully across the dance floor in a myriad of bright and delicate colors. Leading them are distinguished and proud young gentlemen in tuxedos or dinner jackets. On each side of the gym are rows of white covered tables, complete with candles and keep-sake favors. In the candlelight, girl prom servers in short green and yellow petaled dresses—attend each table, pouring punch and serving refreshments. Boy prom servers act as pages, awaiting the seated couples.

Loud strains of popular music—provided by the Monzas—fill the gym, and couples dance with long-awaited anticipation of an unforgettable evening. Other romantic couples stroll across the floor to gaze starry-eyed at the flowered-decked fountain, splashing in the candlelight. It is twelve o'clock, and couples leave reluctantly through the castle drawbridge. "A Mid-Summer Night's Dream," Prom 1965, has been a truly unforgettable evening.

The Prom Servers: FIRST ROW: C. Gourley, L. Pardue, L. Alphine, K. Pierce, G. Ward, C McLauchlin, J. McAdams, J. Deal, E. Kennedy. SECOND ROW: J. Neese, C. Cross, D. Albright, G. Brooks, D. Riggs, E. Davis, S. Cross, and S. Lentz. THIRD ROW: L. Wilson, J. Chappell, C. Bean, R. Hicklin, C. McClintock, B. Ledbetter, S. Pollard, J. Crouch, and C. Simmons, help provide refreshments.

F. Kiser and W. Gregory enter over a draw bridge into another world.

D. Riggs executes her role as Prom Server with a happy smile.

Although the pursuit of knowledge occupies the largest bloc of our time at Williams High School, group solidarity is mandatory if we are to create, in abstract, an authentic replica of our seal. By cementing our friendships, crystallizing our purposes, and consolidating our goals, we make our high school a mammoth laboratory where ideas are fostered, ideals nurtured, and imagination stimulated. At such an educational center, we as individuals, grow in scholarship, service, and spirit, with the incentive to climb deeply instilled within us. As seniors and juniors and sophomores, we attend pep rallies, sing fight songs around huge bonfires, build club floats, serve as hosts for state student government meetings, and join each other in a multitude of other school-related activities. Through such group action, the four parts of our crest fuse to form a single emblem—the seal of Walter M. Williams High School. However, other facets of our life must be shown before our school program comes to full circle, in this section, therefore, we present our emblem as an unencompassed crest, a vital arc of the circle but not its entire circumference.

Sophomores

When Students enter the portals of WHS for the first time, they are undoubtedly awed by the vastness and complexity of the challenges that await them. The worlds of study, service and achievement become real as sophomores seek to apply themselves to the rigors of an exhausting, but very rewarding high school experience.

Sophomores soon meet new people, establishing long-lasting and solid friendships. They wonder at the beauty of Homecoming, the thrill of student elections, the numerous assemblies. They learn the delirious joy and crushing disappointment of athletics and scholarship, and the rewards of service rendered with an untiring spirit.

The sophomore year represents a beginning—the first faltering steps taken up the ladder to success. Here, the challenge is presented. Here, the challenge must be met.

Juniors

Juniors at last reach the status of upperclassmen with the completion of their sophomore year; but with this status come many responsibilities. Paramount among them are the Junior Talent Show, and the Junior-Senior Prom.

The junior year also holds many exciting preparations for the final year of high school. Class members participate in activities which guide them to assuming school leadership in the coming year.

Class rings bring with them a sense of pride which is later climaxed by the final assembly when juniors move up to fill the role of the graduating class. The responsibility of preparing for and decorating the gym for the Junior-Senior Prom brings a sense of accomplishment and pride on that wonderful night when the long-awaited event arrives.

The junior year is one of achievement for the class as a group and each member as an individual. Last year's green sophomore can now look ahead to a year of fulfillment, with the class ring being the first tangible sign that the long-awaited diploma is at last just out of reach.

Seniors look forward to

The Senior Class is led in its activities by Steve Bright, President; Margie Weeks, Vice-President; Vickie Sumner, Secretary; and Carl Salter, Treasurer.

Seniors

As a senior, one finds that the last three years of study and determination have provided many wonderful moments of enjoyment as well as hard work. This enjoyment has come in part from extra-curricular activities; however, the greater portion has sprung from pride in past scholastic accomplishments.

Too soon, the months of the senior year dwindle to days, and the years of high school become cherished memories as each senior goes on to meet new challenges in the adult world. As a leader of tomorrow, one looks forward to graduation and then college; but the memories of high school will always remain.

In Memoriam

Greatness is a quality that has many facets and that is reflected in many ways. Throughout the ages, its possessors have been those capable of performing the drab duties of daily living without shirking; and of facing, with courage, whatever life has to offer.

We, the members of the Senior Class know that in the lives of our former classmates, Gregory Lynn Smith and Patricia Ann Lloyd, we have found a greatness of character that will shape and reshape our own lives as long as we live, for through their words and deeds, they have left us their own edition of PROFILES IN COURAGE.

. . . Tribute to Advertisers

Because Burlington believes in education, it provides its students with superior schools. Because it believes in a capitalistic system of government, it offers its citizens job opportunities in small local businesses and gigantic industrial organizations. Because it is composed of interested individuals, it supports its young adults in such ventures as the publication of a high school yearbook. For these reasons Williams High School salutes Burlington, North Carolina —its home town—and presents it with the DOE-WAH-JACK'S gold seal of approval.

Teresa,
It has really been nice knowing you for the last hundred years. You are a real sweet girl (like Billie) and I'll always remember you. I'll never forget how you felt about Keith and me at the prom. Don't worry, honey, nobody will take him away from you. He won't let them. I'll also never forget how excited you were about this years prom. You and Keith will have to come see us when we get moved into a place in Virginia. You are a real sweet girl and deserve the very best out of life, and you have enough ambition to get it too! I'll never forget that Roaring 20's assembly. I didn't know you had it in you. Take care of yourself and be a good girl. You have a great personality and I'll never ever forget you or your family. May God Bless you and keep you in his guidance always. Best of luck in everything.

Love,
Barbara Sill

In working this year on the DOE-WAH-JACK, we have tried to present a tangible record of those things that have meant so much to all the students at WHS. We hope that in years to come, this record will recall memories of joys and sorrows, thrills and disappointments—in fact, all the things that left their mark on Williams High School in 1965-1966. And this we leave behind—our interpretation of the WHS seal.

Throughout the Feudal Age knights are known for their activities, and are extolled for their deeds of valour. Many legends concern their lives, and one story relates the manner in which their shields became emblazoned with a record for their acts of heroism. According to this legend, a knight enters King Arthur's Round Table with a plain shield and he determines by his deeds what decorations shall miraculously appear on his armor.

In the 1965-1966 DOE-WAH-JACK, we also begin with an undecorated shield, and through our actions we create the four figures that appear on the seal of Walter M. Williams High School—the scroll, the torch, the bulldog, and the stairway. In our search for knowledge, we rely on such learning centers as the classroom, the library, and the science and foreign language laboratories. In our effort to serve, we enter enthusiastically into the extra-curricular activities that center around clubs and their projects, and the co-curricular programs that encourage participation in speech activities and fine arts programs. As we endeavor to gain the spirit of our mascot, we support our athletic teams in their conquest of many excellent groups throughout the state. Then as we acquire some goals and begin to reach for others that still elude our grasp, we grow in wisdom and character, even through our striving. Our current edition of the DOE-WAH-JACK thus shows how the students of Walter M. Williams High School live and learn and lead during a single school year. As we emblazon our plain shield with the abstract values that are represented by the scroll, the torch, the bulldog, and the stairway, we create, through our words and actions, an authentic replica of our high school seal as it appears to us in the school year 1965-1966.

Dear Jerry,
Although I don't know you I'm the best in the world, from what I do know you are real sweet. I think your are very talented and should go very far in life. Always stay as high school. Be proud this summer and stay sweet.

Hi - Terry,

I'll start out with telling you how much I've enjoyed being in the chorus with you. I just don't know how you can get up in front of an audience & perform as well as you do! Your part in the "Roaring 20's Show" was done fantastic. When you said that poem in the talent show -- I almost cried! Oh well, I just wish I had your ability! We've put up with a lot in Miss Harris' class this year. I know she went over every single instruction 10 times! I nearly went crazy. But, since we made it through we have to think about next year. I have to leave, but you will be here to take care of everything. You probably think it's a rat hole (me too, sometimes) but believe me you better enjoy it while you can. It's all over in no time. I am by no means a school lover, but it's a funny feeling to know you are leaving a place full of friends, forever! Make the best of it!

Teresa:
I've never known a girl as quiet, so happy as you. Even if you do talk about Keith & I know you always will, breaking up, I won't mean you will stay together forever (hoped) because you two go together good. I can't tell you how much your friendship means to me. I will treasure knowing you are one of the sweetest persons I have ever met & Jerry, if we don't have classes together next year, please don't let it lessen our friendship. Keep seeing each other & be friends. Tremendous luck & joy to Keith & you through the years.

Love ya,

Terry,

It has been hard getting myself to call you Terry. The name just fits your personality. I am very good at writing mushy things but you are a great person. You do good in all you try to do. Keith is very lucky. Best of luck!

Teresa,

All my life & as long as I live I could never find a girl as pretty & as sweet and smart as you are. You can't imagine how stupid I feel writing to a girl that I have been going with for two and one-half years. Because what can I say that I probably haven't already said, maybe three or four times already. I guess it must be just for the books, you know, so when you look back on this page, in this book, years from now, you can read it and think of all the memories you may have and at the same time, get a big kick out of it. I would like to tell you in writing, that I am trying real hard to make my life a successful one and also you know who!!! I hope that my future plans will work out like I expect them to now, and if everything goes as it is going now, I believe that nothing can interfere with them. I believe that one-fourth of my plans have been completed and the remaining three-fourths are in the process in very good shape. You probably want understand the last two sentences but don't worry about it, I do. I also would like to tell you that I am very proud of you in a special way. You always tell me that I make fun of everything you do, but I don't, because like I said I am very proud of your accomplishments. your leading role in "The Roaring 20's", all of your scholar achievements in school, and especially your winning "Miss Lifeline". That's what I proud of you the most, because they couldn't have picked a more perfect girl to carry the crown. I don't know how to say it, but this year you seemed to have developed an unique desire to accomplish many goals, and you always do. I don't believe that I could go with a more nicer girl than you and as far as I'm concerned I don't care to go with anyone else. As a fellow poet stated, ~~your~~ with a little missing from me, "your ~~smile~~ smile is like the sun, bursting forth with brilliance in my heart..."

Love you forever and always)

Keith
